Legal crusader Erin Brockovich last month joined forces with Shine Lawyers, saying she would help take on the tough cases and gain justice for everyday Australians.

"Like me, Shine have a reputation for standing up for ordinary people and never shying away from a tough case," she said. "I chose to work with Shine Lawyers over any other Australian law firm because I believe in what they are doing."

Ms Brockovich also officially opened the Shine Centre of Learning in Toowoomba, the first in-house legal residential training facility of its kind in Australia, which gives specialised legal courses to anyone, including lawyers, who has a passion or interest in the legal field.

"Courses offered at the Shine Centre of Learning will broaden the skill base for many lawyers and legal staff, making them better advocates for their clients and better able to achieve positive outcomes," she said. ■
